

Alumni Social Impact Report

Founded in 1990, Teach For America now has more than 12,000 alumni who comprise a growing force of leaders working to effect social change from a variety of sectors.

A significant and growing number of alumni hold leadership roles—as lead teachers, principals, nonprofit leaders, school board members, and social entrepreneurs—in high-need communities across the country. The vast majority of our alumni, regardless of career path, remain committed to our mission of ensuring educational equity well beyond their corps commitments. In fact, 94 percent report that they are supporting Teach For America’s mission through career, philanthropy, volunteerism, or graduate study.

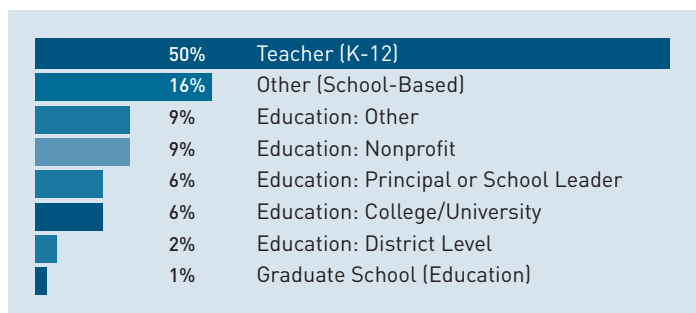

Alumni by Sector

More than two-thirds of Teach For America alumni are currently working or studying full-time in the field of education. Those who work outside of education bring their unique experience and perspective to a great variety of sectors—including law, business, medicine, and policy—where their efforts are increasing opportunities in low-income communities.

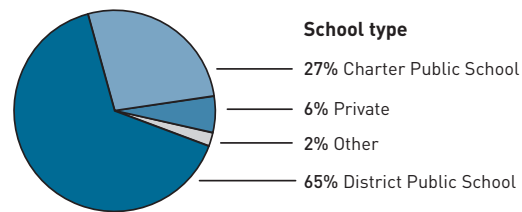

Alumni in Education

Among the 67 percent of alumni working or studying full-time in education, half are teachers.

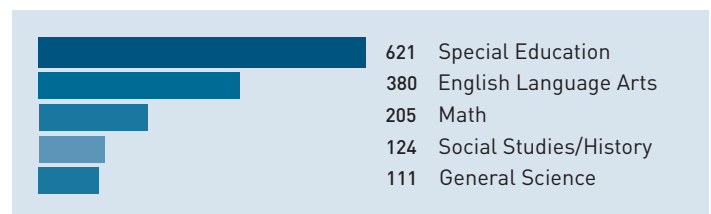

Of alumni working in schools:

- 34% work in a low-income community outside their placement region
- 20% work in their placement region
- 18% work in their placement school

Alumni in Teaching

Many alumni in the classroom are serving in high-need areas, including special education, math, and science.

- 226 alumni have earned National Board Certification through the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards. 223 are currently candidates for this distinction.
- Hundreds of alumni have won the highest teaching accolades on a national and local level. In 2005, Jason Kamras (Metro D.C. '96) was named National Teacher of the Year. This year, Kristin Bourguet (S. Louisiana '99) and Justin Minkel (N.Y.C. '00) were named Arizona and Arkansas teachers of the year respectively. Minkel was also a finalist for the 2007 National Teacher of the Year.

Most Popular Graduate Schools

Business	Education	Law	Medicine	Policy
Harvard University	Pace University	Harvard University	University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill	Harvard University
Stanford University	Harvard University	New York University	Harvard University	New York University
Yale University	Loyola Marymount University	Georgetown University	University of California-San Francisco	University of Chicago
Northwestern University	Johns Hopkins University	University of California-Berkeley	Johns Hopkins University	Syracuse University
University of Texas at Austin	Teachers College, Columbia University	University of Texas at Austin	University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston	University of Texas at Austin

Alumni in School Leadership

A significant number of Teach For America alumni hold leadership roles in district and charter school systems across the country.

3 traditional school district superintendents/chancellors:

- Michelle Rhee (Baltimore '92), Chancellor of the District of Columbia Public Schools
- Cami Anderson (L.A. '93), Superintendent of District 79, Alternative Schools and Programs, New York City Department of Education
- Brian Osborne (N.Y.C. '91), Superintendent of South Orange/Maplewood School District in New Jersey

246 principals

Alumni in Political Leadership

In recent years, Teach For America alumni have been successful in assuming leadership roles within the political arena.

6 Teach For America alumni currently serve as elected officials

- Layla Avila (L.A. '97), South Whittier School District Board of Trustees (Calif.)
- Sekou Biddle (N.Y.C. '93), D.C. State Board of Education
- Natasha Kamrani (Houston '91), Houston Independent School District Board of Education
- Nicholas Krump (Metro D.C. '97), Phoenix Elementary School District Governing Board
- Jen Miller-Arsenault (R.G.V. '92), Rumney Memorial School Board (Vt.)
- Drew Elliot Smith (Bay Area '99), North Plainfield School Board of Education (N.J.)

200 alumni work on Capitol Hill, in policy or in advocacy

The information in this report is based on self-reported data as of April 2007 and represents more than 57% of our alumni network. Percentages are rounded and may not add up to 100.

Alumni in Social Entrepreneurship

Our alumni are being recognized for their leadership in social entrepreneurship:

3 Echoing Green Fellows:

- Furman Brown (L.A. '90), Founder and Executive Director of Generation Schools
- Anthony Jewett (N.Y.C. '03), Founder and CEO of Bardoli Global
- Chris Myers Asch (Delta '94), Cofounder of the U.S. Public Service Academy

3 Aspen Institute-NewSchools Entrepreneurial Leaders for Public Education Fellows:

- Chris Barbic (Houston '92), Founder and Head of YES Prep Public Schools
- Kaya Henderson (N.Y.C. '92), Deputy Chancellor of the District of Columbia Public Schools and former Vice President for Strategic Partnerships of The New Teacher Project
- Elisa Villanueva Beard (Phoenix '98), Chief Operating Officer of Teach For America

Alumni Accolades

Our alumni are winning prestigious leadership awards.

- 6 Broad Residents in Urban Education
- 22 Coro Fellows
- 32 Fulbright Scholars
- 19 Presidential Management Fellows
- 4 Rhodes Scholars
- 4 Skadden Fellows